

Flash Card

This project revolved around a children's math problem.

The objective was to execute the children's math problem for a flashcard. The guideline included that an animal was required to represent the math problem. The animal that was picked for me was a fox.

Each fox had slightly varied looks in its design. The heads were only designed to keep it simple. A full body illustration was also avoided because it could potentially distract the attended audience.

